

Investigators Worried Over Beck's Actions

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.) said today he has a message from President Dave Beck of the Teamsters Union indicating "a measure of reservation" about how much co-operation Beck may give to Senate racketeering investigators.

McClellan said Beck, just back from Europe, sent him word by messenger that he plans to get a physical checkup and consult with tax attorneys before deciding "what materials or records he will submit" to the investigators.

McClellan is chairman of the Special Senate committee conducting the inquiry into alleged racketeer infiltration of labor unions and industry. Asked by reporters whether the message satisfied him as to the degree of co-operation he may expect from Beck, McClellan replied:

"I took it there was a measure of reservation. I couldn't interpret it any other way." He also recorded this statement for a radio broadcast tonight Mutual's "reporters Roundup."

McClellan told reporters he would be highly curious if Beck's physicians recommend against his coming to Washington for questioning by the committee.

"In my opinion," he said, "Mr. Beck's travels abroad clearly indicate he can travel from Seattle to Washington. It would take some pretty strong evidence to refute that."

Meanwhile Robert F. Kennedy, committee counsel, said Mayor Terry D. Schruk of Portland, Ore., had "balked at answering certain questions in a lie detector test" and the test was finally cancelled.

Schrunk had volunteered to take the test in an effort to back up his testimony. The mayor has denied the stories of several witnesses that, while Multnomah County sheriff in 1955, he accepted a $500 bribe to call off a raid on a gambling house.

Schrunk entered a room with U.S. Secret Service polygraph operators declaring:

"I have told the truth and I'll tell it again in here. I just pray to God the machine tells the truth too."

That was the last reporters saw or heard of him until hours later, when Kennedy received a report from the Secret Service. The committee counsel declined to go into details.

Kennedy said the rest of the story would have to wait until Schrunk could be questioned about it under oath when the hearing resumes tomorrow. He said Schrunk would be called as the first witness.

A spokesman for Dr. Marshall I. Stewart, Schrunk's lawyer, said Schrunk balked with "investigatory questions, some new questions" were injected into the test along with questions about matters on which the mayor previously had testified.

McClellan said he still assumes that Beck will step forward as a voluntary witness and surrender the personal financial records the committee has asked of him, without being subpoenaed.

In his recorded radio interview McClellan said his committee is getting tips from both union members and some employers about alleged wrong-doing. Asked whether there was any evidence of racketeer tieups with employers, he said "we do have information along that line."

He said there is "so much information coming in so fast" about the teamsters and other unions that it is difficult to keep up with it. He said he can state "without reservation" that investigations in the East and Middle West have shown situations "maybe not exactly similar, but comparable."

He said new laws tightening requirements for financial reports to the members, and to place more responsibility on union officials to report should be considered.

SEATO Speaker Issues Warning

CANBERRA, Australia, March 11 (AP)—A spokesman for the SEATO Council of Ministers recalled tonight "the risk of overt Communist aggression in South-East Asia has diminished; the threat on the subversive side has increased."

Defensive capacity of the eight-nation alliance was reported to have risen sharply, though the size of the members' armed forces remains much the same.

Heart Ailment Fatal To Admiral Byrd

BOSTON, March 11 (AP)—Retired Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd, USN, the first man to fly over both the North and South Poles, died tonight. He was 68.

The pioneering air explorer, who had been named over-all head of the Navy's huge Operation Deep Freeze in Antarctica, had been ailing with a heart condition several months.

The affliction prevented his assuming on-the-spot supervision of the polar expedition in this International Geophysical Year.

Byrd was decorated Feb. 21 with the Defense Department's Medal of Freedom. The presentation was done quietly by Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, who flew into Boston, made the award and immediately returned by air to Washington.

Byrd had been under the care of Dr. William E. Greer, and Dr. Paul Dudley White, heart specialist, who was a consultant when President Eisenhower suffered a heart attack.

Foremost among the world's air-explorers, Byrd was instrumental in charting some two million square miles of the earth's surface previously unseen by man—a feat unequalled in history.

Naval Academy

Since the age of 12, when he traveled around the world unaccompanied the lure of the unknown called him to far-away regions.

This man of slender frame and steel-blue eyes was the leading pioneer among a family of Virginians dating back to 1671. He was born in Winchester, Va. He was a brother of U.S. Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia.

Graduating from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1912, Byrd was forced into early retirement by a leg injury, but came back to serve in two world wars, to pioneer in naval aviation, to command the first multiengine plane to fly the Atlantic—continent to continent nonstop.

And at the age of 41, his commissioning as rear admiral made him the youngest of that rank in the Navy at that time.

First systematic explorer of the arctic by air, he headed two arctic and five antarctic expeditions—flying over the heartland of Antarctica during his last trip to that frozen continent in late 1955 and early 1956.

Costello Freed On Bond

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP)—Ailing gambler Frank Costello, 65, imprisoned as an income tax cheat 10 months ago, was freed on bond today, his conviction and his sentence in doubt.

"I lost 15 pounds," he told reporters. "I've got a cold. I've had it three months now and it seems I can't get rid of it."

Costello's voice quavered as he spoke. He has said under oath that he is suffering from heart disease, cancer and ulcers.

Earlier in the day, the U.S. Supreme Court ordered Costello freed on $25,000 bond, pending a ruling on whether the law under which he was convicted provides a maximum sentence of only one year.

Costello went to prison under five-year sentence last May 14 on a 1954 conviction for evading $28,532 in income taxes.

The government currently is trying to reinstate the denaturalization case as a prelude to deporting Costello.

Four Bills Presented

HARRISBURG, March 11 (AP)—Four bills designed to prohibit labor unions from contributing to the political campaign of any party were presented to the House tonight.

You will find a new joy in life, a new purpose to live and a power to accomplish things that seemed to be impossible.

Stroudsburg Fire Department's Lone Death In Line Of Duty Occurred 72 Years Ago Today

By Paul Carlson
MOST OF the old-timers will have forgotten and few of their children have ever heard about it.

But 72-years ago today, Edward Cavenee lost his life fighting a fire which swept through the Burnett House, or what is now the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Cavenee was the only Stroudsburg borough firefighter ever to lose his life in the line of service.

You'll find the story of Cavenee's heroism written in the faded pages of a time-worn volume entitled "Fire Record, Phoenix Fire Co. No. 2, Stroudsburg, Pa." The date was Thursday, March 12, 1885. The time: 1 a.m.

Cavenee was caught beneath the falling roof and was dead when his comrades reached him.

Shortly before 1 a.m., Cavenee himself discovered a fire in a frame building on Franklin St., or what is now Eighth St. Owned by Samuel Hood, Fable and Singer operated a broom factory there.

But let R. B. Keller, former Phoenix secretary, tell the story as he wrote it 72-years ago:

"The alarm was given and the company quickly responded to the call. The fire was discovered in an early stage of its progress and might possibly have been confined to the building in which it started but for the fact that the three nearest water plugs, viz. the one at the Court House, the one at Hesses Corner (location in doubt), and the one at Kerr's Corner (where the Security Trust Co. is now located) were frozen shut.

"This caused considerable delay. The fire gained great headway and ignited the Burnett House shed.

"Finally, the plug at the corner of Bark (now Ann St.) and Franklin (Eighth) Sts. was discovered to be free, this great, good luck being due to a leak in the pipe near the plug.

"The engine was quickly stationed and the hose laid; but now the fire was raging intensely in two large frame buildings and the Burnett House and adjoining buildings were in imminent danger.

"The boys saw this and worked like tigers and the engine under the able management of Jansen and Drolet worked like a charm.

"While all were working at their best, and without a moment's warning, there was a tremendous explosion, a shout of alarm from the outstanding crowd, and a crash, and the soul of one Fire Laddie was launched into eternity."

In a much bolder script, Keller wrote: "May the memory of Edward Cavenee ever live in the hearts of the citizens of Stroudsburg."

Public Roads Bureau Seeks New Costs Data On Thruway

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP)—The Pennsylvania Highways Department has been asked for further cost data relating to its request for approval of a proposed part of the interstate system.

George Williams, deputy commissioner of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, told a newsman the bureau has asked for the same information on U. S. Route 6, a general route to the north of the Stroudsburg-Sharon highway.

Williams said the bureau has suggested some modifications in the state's proposed route—known as the Keystone Shortway—between the two terminals.

No Details
The commissioner did not elaborate on details of the modifications but said the bureau felt the new cost data should be submitted before a decision is reached on where to locate the road.

"We want to make absolutely certain that what we do is right," said Williams.

Final approval on such projects must come from Washington, although the individual state submits its recommendations to the district office of the roads bureau. Williams said he did not expect the requested cost data from Harrisburg "for some time," since it involves considerable work.

Should the so-called Shortway route win approval of the bureau, the federal government would pay 90 per cent of the construction cost with the Commonwealth paying the remainder.

The road would stretch some 291 miles across north-central Pennsylvania. Its advocates say it is the shortest route between Chicago and New York.

A storm of controversy has developed in recent months between advocates of the Shortway and Route 6.

In Washington, Reps. Simpson (R-Pa.) and Kearns (R-Pa.) and Saylor (R-Pa.) favor construction first of a link between the present Pennsylvania Turnpike main stem with the Erie area, Rep. Bush (R-Pa.) whose district includes both Route 6 and the proposed Keystone Shortway is reserving judgment.

Sen. Martin (R-Pa.) also is withholding a final opinion while Sen. Clark (D-Pa.) has said he favors construction of the Shortway provided it does not take priority over other connecting links in the state system.

Clark said completion of the Shortway before other roads in Eastern Pennsylvania could mean that freight from the west would be whisked through Pennsylvania bypassing Philadelphia and pouring into New York.

Eat Your Troubles Away! Food Good Cold Medicine

By LEONARD KORDDEL
Installment Eight

means the prevention of that run-down condition generally agreed to be the principal reason for your catching colds.

Chilling, exposure to dampness, sudden changes of atmosphere, exposure in a draft, getting wet feet, and working or playing in crowded rooms with others who have coughs and sniffly noses are only environmental factors contributing to the spread of colds.

These, however, are often unavoidable in our busy lives and, by themselves, do not bring colds.

Your Duty

It is your duty to your body to build up a resistance powerful enough to enable you to cope with these everyday hazards. A nutritionally protected body does not catch cold! It can, and does, fight off armies of viruses, regardless of the atmosphere.

Persistent colds attack weak bodies. The person who has one cold right after another, all winter long, is lacking essential substances in his body. The prevalence of colds in fall and winter directly points to the importance of diet and sunshine.

Your eating changes with the seasons. In the winter the tendency is to eat more pastries and starches, thinking they will keep you warm when temperatures drop. This is a fallacy! Indulge excessively in holiday sweets, heavy dressings, gravies, and the weakened, starch-poisoned body is all ready to catch cold.

Contrast this with your summer diet. You cut down the starches and increase your use of lean meats, fish, cheese, eggs. And certainly, you eat more fruits and vegetables, with their "fresh from the garden" flavor. In short, your summer diet gives you the proteins, vitamins and minerals needed to fight off infection.

Eskimo

Arctic explorers Stefansson and Anderson proved the value of a high-protein diet in withstanding exposure during their enforced stay with the Eskimos in the northern part of Canada. This all-protein diet cured Anderson of his tendency to suffer one head cold after another. Stefansson reported that he had found no cases of head colds or pneumonia among the Eskimos.

Vitamin C (ascorbic acid) is one of the best natural nutritional builders of antibodies in your system. Antibodies are substances produced by the healthy body to render harmless the many infections entering it.

Recent experiments have proved that vitamin C acts as a super antibiotic in the prevention and control of head colds and complications arising from them. Dr. R. R. Klenner described the case of a patient with chills, fever, and head cold of two weeks' duration who recovered within 72 hours after massive doses of vitamin C.

Resist Infection

Sufficient quantities of vitamin C must be present in the body to resist infections. After contracting a cold, it is more essential than ever that the daily intake be increased. Dr. Klenner found, in cases of virus infection, that the greater the respiratory infection, the more the need for almost heroic amounts of vitamin C.

"I drink a glass of orange juice daily," said one of my students, "and I eat tomatoes all winter long. Doesn't that give me enough vitamin C?"

Even freshly squeezed orange juice, and home-grown sun-ripened tomatoes, would furnish a bare one sixth of the vitamin C she needed. In summer you can increase your necessary supply of vitamin C with fresh garden vegetables and fruits such as strawberries, cherries, loganberries, peaches, apricots, and melons.

In the winter you have to make up for the loss of vitamin C through eating more whole citrus fruits and using a reliable vitamin C concentrate. An easy way to check for sufficient vitamin C in the body is to observe how easily you bruise. Tendency to bruise indicates a lack of this vitamin, because the capillaries break when struck.

Vitamin Cold-Fighter

From almost the same food sources as vitamin C, there is a new vitamin cold-fighter called vitamin P.

It combines with Vitamin A in preventing the virus of the common cold from sneaking into the bloodstream via weak spots in the mucous membrane lining of the nose or throat.

Fortunately, vitamin A can be built up and stored in the body, to be used as needed. Eating plenty of butter, eggs, liver, salmon, cheese and milk products will help supply vitamin A for the winter diet.

The sunshine of summer, which fortifies our bodies with vitamin D, has to be replaced during the winter with fatty fish, tuna, salmon, sardines, butter and cheese. Sunflower seeds are a rich source of this vitamin. So are cod and halibut liver oils.

Emotional upsets are quite frequently blamed as the cause of a common cold. This is why vitamin B complex is important in preparing the body to combat the cold virus floating around in the deficient, infected, and poisonous air of our cities. B-vitamin deficiencies will show up first in your nerves.

Positive Resistance

When little things get you down, when you can no longer control your emotions, be sure you get the B-vitamins you need by eating plenty of liver, wheat germ, whole grains, millet, honey and skim-milk powder.

Contrary to popular opinions, the resistance established by having a cold lasts but a very short time. The only safe resistance that can be built up is that of a healthy, well-nourished body.

Omitting starches from the diet is the first step. Tests have shown that heavy starch eaters are more susceptible to sinus and respiratory infections. Starches clog up your digestive tract, producing toxins in your body which make you easy prey to colds.

CONSTIPATED?

New laxative discovery un-locks bowel blocks without gag, bloot or gripe

Constipation is caused by what doctors call a "thrifty" colon that, instead of retaining moisture as it should, does the opposite: robs the colon of so much moisture that its contents become dehydrated, so dry that they block the bowel, so shrunken that they fail to excite or stimulate the urge to purge that propels and expels waste from your body.

To regain normal regularity, the dry, shrunken, constipating contents of your colon which now block your bowel must be moistened. Second, bulk must be brought to your colon to set-as-it-can-stimulate it to action: to a normal urge to purge. And, of all laxatives, only COLONOID, the amazing new laxative discovery possesses COLONOID's great moisturizing capacity, plus COLONOID's stretch-stimulating bulk. So effective it relieves even chronic constipation overnight, COLONOID is yet so smooth, so gentle it has proved safe even for women in critical stages of pregnancy. Superior to old style bulk, salt or drug laxatives, COLONOID neither gags, bloats nor gripes; won't interfere with absorption of vitamins and other valuable food nutrients; in clinical tests, did not cause rash or other reactions.

It's a physiological fact: Exercise tones your body! And COLONOID exercises your colon to tone it against constipation, overnight! Get COLONOID, in easy-to-take tablet form at any drug counter, today! Only 98c for the 60 tablet package, brings positive relief at less than 2c per tablet.

County Faces Shortage Of Housing For Old Folks

By Leonard Randolph
MONROE County is now being faced with a critical shortage of adequate housing and treatment for older persons.

This fact was accentuated by two separate phases of a regular meeting of Monroe County Commissioners yesterday morning.

The first of these was the latest in a series of discussions by commissioners themselves on a growing and unavoidable question: How long can the county go on without initiating a building program for the County Home at Kellersville.

The second was a conference with spokesmen for a committee which is now working on a proposed "Home for the Aging" in this area.

In their own discussion—which took up nearly half an hour before the citizen's delegates appeared—Commissioners Willard Quick and W. Adolph Rake pointed out that the present County Home was built in 1924.

It rapidly became outmoded and inadequate and, for more than a decade, it has been overcrowded, they said.

Because of the advances of medical science, human beings—including those in Monroe County—are living longer. Quick pointed out. With this as an accepted fact of life, it becomes natural that more and more persons will require admission to the County Home under normal circumstances.

The county has felt the pressure of increasing demands for admission for years now. Most of the time there is a "waiting list" of older men and women who cannot be admitted until room is created or until a home may be found in a comparatively inexpensive private nursing home.

Many times, these citizens are ill. And it is in this area that the County Home cannot hope to provide the maximum care needed to fill its role as a place of retirement, a nursing home and a multi-purpose home for the care of persons who are mentally incompetent or unable to care for themselves physically.

Delegates from the private committee for the "Home for the Aging" were Dr. Nina Price and E. H. Wyckoff. Both of them praised the operation of the present County Home.

But Wyckoff pointed out that the county needs a separate home of the kind envisioned by the committee. He said that such a home could also be "used by the county" if the county could agree to pay for the room and board or care of persons it sends to the home.

Commissioners and solicitor L. A. Achterman agreed that the county could make use of such a home once it is built. But they emphasized again that no county funds may be used toward the construction of such a home.

Both delegates said that the committee understands this. They pointed out, however, that they feel county subsidies in the form of payment for those under care would help keep the home in operation.

As it is now visualized by the committee—and Wyckoff, as spokesman, said that it is a "visionary" theory at present—the "Home for the Aging" would contain "about 100 beds" initially. An estimated 200 persons would probably be in line for admission to the home and might seek admission, he said.

The theory behind the "Home for the Aging" will be that "some of those who are admitted can afford to pay and some cannot," Wyckoff said. He pointed out that the committee has already decided on a potential site for the home—the Fannie Swartzwelder property "about a half mile from the central part of town."

This latter point is highly important, Wyckoff said, "because it will allow those who live at the home to maintain their contact with the town, go to church on Sundays, go shopping when they like, if they are able to do so."

He estimated the cost of the proposed building at "between $400,000 and $500,000," but agreed with Achterman that the figure was "probably very low."

As presently projected by the committee, the home would contain about 72 rooms, a 15-bed infirmary and a 15-bed extension. One part of it would be reserved for rental to couples who can "afford to pay more and who want to live in such a centralized home because of the supervision and security they can have through knowing they will have care when needed."

Wyckoff indicated that to build the home a "large amount of money must be secured from private sources." He said that some support, in financial terms, might come from the national Hill-Burton Fund.

Dr. Price pointed out that the State Department of Public Assistance will allow a greater allocation per month for patients who are being given full-time nursing care in a State-approved home.

Under present terms, the DPA cannot provide additional funds of any kind when a patient is taken to a private nursing home which lacks State approval as a 24-hour nursing center.

Delegates invited commissioners to attend a full meeting of their committee Saturday at 2 p. m. in Wyckoff's Tea Room.

In commenting on the proposal for the privately-financed "Home for the Aging," Commissioner Quick pointed out that such a building would "still not remove the necessity for county expansion at the County Home."

Quick also emphasized that the cost of operation in a home caring for a hundred persons—a certain percentage of whom would be bed-ridden—would be anything but nominal.

Groups Oppose Wire Tapping
HARRISBURG, March 11 (P)—Civic, legal and utility groups threw their weight today behind a Senate proposal to ban wiretapping, but law enforcement groups contended it should be retained.

"We feel that the banning of the use of wiretap evidence in courts will not only promote justice, but will make Pennsylvania's regulation the same as the federal courts and as in 15 other states," said Harry Boyer, president of the State Cio Council in supporting the measure.

On the other side, Robert Harris, Schuylkill County district attorney and president of the District Attorneys Assn. of Pennsylvania, said wiretapping should be retained as an investigating tool, but under strict control.

Why Kneel To Pray?

One thing that puzzles an Episcopalian is to be asked, "Why do you kneel to pray in your church?" He's as likely to answer by asking in return, "Why not?"

To us it just seems natural that we should be on our knees during prayer. Prayer is a combination of elements. It consists of humble adoration of God, thanksgiving for His blessings to us, confession of sin and petition for forgiveness, supplication for help and intercession for our loved ones and the needs of the world.

And when you consider that in the Episcopal Church we use the Book of Common Prayer so that we may join together and not just sit back and let the minister pray for us, kneeling certainly is the natural thing.

If you'll stop to think, it makes sense. When you were a child, you learned to pray kneeling at your bedside. There are many fraternal orders in which it is customary for all the members to kneel while they are led in prayer by the chaplain. Why not kneel in church?

Here's a suggestion. Visit the Episcopal Church near you soon. Join in the service. Kneel with the congregation. The person near you will show you how to follow the service in the Prayer Book. You'll leave feeling as though "you've really been in church."

'Citizen's Checklists' Should Be Followed In Bringing Saner Approach To Government

A sane approach to government is a quality much to be desired, but one that frequently is missing in these days of world tension, high taxes, clashing ideologies and selfishness.

It is comforting, therefore, to come across a message intended to set us straight in our thinking by giving us a yardstick by which we can measure the actions of government.

The message was placed in the advertising columns of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Assn. Press Bulletin by the Associated Petroleum Industries of Pennsylvania.

"This citizen's checklist," the heading read, "may help you decide whether or not a law, expenditure or other government proposal is good for you and your fellow citizens."

Then followed these 10 points:

"(1.) Is it necessary? Or is it something that is not really needed or, perhaps, already being provided by a private or public group.

"(2.) Can we afford it? Remember, there is no limit to what we would like, but there is a limit to what we can afford.

"(3.) What will it cost ultimately? Many proposals are like icebergs—only a small fraction of the total cost is apparent on the surface.

"(4.) How will it affect basic liberties? If it imposes unreasonable or illegal restraints on your life or that of others, it should be vigorously opposed.

"(5.) Is it in the balanced best interest of all? If it is designed to benefit a small group or special interests while taking unfair advantage of others, work for its defeat.

"(6.) Is it a 'foot-in-the-door' proposition? Compromising a little now may bring an oppressive burden later either in more regulations or more taxes or a combination of both.

"(7.) Does it place too much power in the hands of one individual or group? Once decisive power is granted to a non-elected public official, a commission or a municipal authority, the private citizens lose effective control.

"(8.) Does it recognize the importance of the individual and the minority? This is a cornerstone of our Republic.

"(9.) Is its appeal based on emotional propaganda or facts? The farther a proposition gets away from facts, the more critical one should be.

"(10.) Does it square with your moral convictions? If so, fight for it. If not, oppose it."

These ten points, we feel, are based on good common sense and it's difficult to see how any governing body could go wrong by adopting them as its guide in the handling of public affairs.

Hoosiers Self-Reliant

There's startling news from the State of Indiana, a region inhabited by citizens who call themselves Hoosiers. As will be seen, they are a peculiar lot.

For instance, the hard-headed people of Bedford, Ind., decided they needed a new $150,000 club for boys. But they decided to pay for it themselves.

They didn't run with hats in hand to the state capital in Indianapolis or to the generous members of Congress in Washington for money.

"Bedford citizens thus lived up to the Hoosier principle of independence. They proved to their own youngsters their willingness to sacrifice for them and their future. Therefore, they have gained a great measure of self-satisfaction," said U. S. Rep. Earl Wilson, congressman from the Bedford district.

As pointed out by the Pittsburgh Press, here's one place in which the now old-fashioned American principles of self-reliance and do-it-yourself still exist.

We could use more of that in Pennsylvania—and throughout the nation—if we really mean that we want less tax-eating.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Middle East Problems Haven't Been Solved By United Nations Actions Or U. S. Policy

In the current debate concerning Egypt and Israel, it is too often forgotten that the trouble started when Nasser seized the Suez Canal. This was an act of expropriation, committed in violent anger, not against the owners of the canal but against the United States for its refusal to underwrite the Aswan High Dam.

What Nasser could get by the seizure of the canal is problematic. The revenue from transit charges in 1955 amounted to $32,500,000. Deducting expenses, the revenue that could accrue to Egypt in a good year would be $22,500,000. Egypt has been receiving $4,400,000,000 a year for taxes and royalties. The gain would therefore be $18,100,000,000. One American dollar is worth 350 francs. Therefore the grand total that would accrue is a small amount.

Nasser could not have seized the canal for the money to be made from it. Furthermore, it was the canal he seized not the company. Had he seized the company, he would have become liable for all its obligations. Not having seized the company, he will probably have to recompense it in some form. In a word, it is impossible to calculate any figures to show that Nasser stands to make much money out of the seizure of the canal.

Therefore, it must be assumed that the canal was seized as a political measure. First of all, it would give Nasser an opportunity to kick the British in the economic groin. This would show other Arab countries that Nasser has courage, initiative and that he is willing to take great risks to establish his anti-colonial principles.

Nasser already has the support of Soviet Russia and the United States was inclined to be most friendly. He was in a strong position to play off Soviet Russia against the United States. In the Arab world, he was sure of Syria, but he was establishing cooperative strength in Saudi Arabia and Jordan. He had formed some kind of an alliance with Nehru.

He could not have foretold that Israel would attack him, occupy the Sinai Desert, take Gaza, seize stores of munitions, planes, tanks, etc. It is generally held that had the British and French not interfered, the Israeli army could have marched to Cairo.

It was a sad debacle and Nasser was saved only by the attitude of the United States which was that whichever country the United States regarded as the aggressor, the United States would oppose.

Nasser lost face among the Arabs and among his own people and it is practically certain that had there been no American interference, he would have toppled and someone else, possibly General Naguib, would have taken his place.

There is no record in history of either Arab or Moslem unity for any prolonged period. But at the present time, the Baghdad Treaty countries are definitely anti-Nasser. These are Iraq, Iran, Pakistan and most importantly Turkey which is also a NATO country.

Saudi Arabia is moving away from Nasser. Libya and Ethiopia are dangerously antagonistic to him and it is not at all possible that war may break out between Egypt and Ethiopia over many issues. In a word, Nasser had extended himself and Israel pricked his bubble.

There is no evidence that Nasser is a Marxist no matter what his relations with Soviet Russia may be. Nasser's own explanation of his ideas appears in these words:

"In the past the country belonged not to the people but to a small clique of exploiters. The revolution came and declared that it was against the domination of the Government by capital, not against capital itself. Capital had begun to depart from its natural duty. It ought to have directed itself to investment and the increase of production and national income. Instead, corrupt capital sought to dominate the affairs of government. The social philosophy of the revolution must be given a chance to develop . . ."

This quotation—and there is more of it—does not indicate a Marxist influence. It is therefore not easy to define Egyptian socialism of the Nasser type. Nor can one use the word, democracy, in connection with his form of government. It is a dictatorship controlled by a military junta.

The problems of the Middle East, as one analyzes them, have not been solved by any action in the United Nations or by the policies of the United States.

Fairly Spoken By MARGARET LATROBE Listening In On Talk Of Our Six-Year-Olds

"Daddy, how does God turn on the stars at night? What makes the wind whistle? Where does my voice go when it quits talking? . . ."

Friends, these are the simpler challenges of childhood. Forgetting parents' feet up lodges close to the public library in order to keep a length ahead in the unending, unpaying quiz kid questionnaire. And finding no living quarters near the source material, others build bookshelves for large sets of encyclopedias.

The mockery of it is this—kiddies constantly outwit these grove books by asking the unanswerable. Parents may emerge as numskulls in young eyes while becoming expert diversionsists. "Well now, let's look up the answer together . . ." is only a subterfuge by which it is hoped that a pretty butterfly in full color might distract Junior from that "where does the smoke go?" routine.

The direct question is bad enough for parental morale. Worse yet is listening in on the six-year-old ways length. They make no sense at this age, yet understand each other perfectly. "My daddy is taking us to the circus next Tuesday . . ." says one. "That's good," says the other, "and I don't even know what 'exciting means.'"

"But . . ." replies the first, "you eat blueberry muffins, so . . ." "Iah!" counters the second. " . . . they look funny in the microscope!"

Panic-stricken elders do well to hide behind the newspaper, pretending to read favored columns—anything rather than give in to a normal impulse for flight. Are these kids having a dry joke, deliberately trying to drive the old man daff? Or what?

Blueberries—microscopes—circuses? The urge toward introspection becomes great, just here. But I urge you not to give in to that, either. Catching the sense of such childish talk is outside your adult power and to get a clue you'll need six-year-old advice. I wouldn't recommend this course at all, simply because the young should be shielded from premature discovery of parental incompetence. You have resorted to "Let's look it up together" often to undermine their belief in your store of wisdom; don't compound the error by attempting to follow their private discourses.

"If we take our umbrellas when it isn't raining," says one, joyfully, "how about the quartz?"

"Well," says the other, "I have a pocketful, so why don't we wait for the mailman? Go ask your mother if she really means it. . . ."

There is only one answer to that. "Of course, dear." And get back to that newspaper. The kids will grow up soon enough, soon enough.

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

Skinny lad, weighing 150 pounds or less, turned out for the first football practice at one of the Big Ten colleges last fall, but soon thought better of his impulse. Customer in a Piccadilly chemist's shop was called back at the door by the proprietor who explained, "I'm afraid I've given you strychnine instead of quinine." "What's the difference?" glibbed the customer. "Fourpence!" said the proprietor.

Lady braced a greeting-card salesman and inquired, "Do you carry a get-well card that conveys a definite impression the patient isn't one half as sick as she thinks she is?"

more tired after a Follies show than before . . . Another thing making it difficult to give a Ziegfeld show the former appeal is the complete change in the matter of available comedians . . . Zieggie could use Will Rogers and W. C. Fields in the same show or throw-in top comedians with Ed Wynn, the Howard Brothers and Fannie Brice . . .

Robert S. Allen Reports

Twining Slated To Head Joint Chiefs Of Staff

Washington, March 11—General Nathan Twining is the next chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

This will be officially announced within a few weeks for a two-year term starting August 15. The 60-year-old Air veteran has been privately informed of his selection.

Twining will be the first Air Force officer to hold this top military post.

His appointment was decided on after it was definitely ascertained that it would be impossible to secure congressional approval for a third term for Admiral Arthur Radford, Defense Secretary Charles Wilson strongly favored that, but was unable to put it over due to key congressional balking.

Last week this column disclosed that Rep. Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), powerful chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, had sternly rebuffed overtures in behalf of Radford.

Section 211 of the National Security Act of 1947 limits appointments to the Joint Chiefs to two terms, except in wartime. To reappoint Radford again, Congress would have to enact an exception to this law. Vinson served notice he was against it, and that ended it.

Senate confirmation of Twining's elevation to head of the Joint Chiefs is virtually certain. He is well regarded in Congress.

However, the Senate Armed Services Committee will hold hearings on his promotion. For one reason, Committee men want to question Twining regarding the Air Force's greatly reduced estimate of Russia's strategic bomber strength.

In the latest report submitted to the Committee, the Air Force expressed belief the Soviet has no more than 40 Bison jet bombers, with a monthly production of them of around 10. These totals are approximately one-half of an official estimate made to Senator Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), last May.

The new report states the Reds are having much trouble with the Bison, both in production and in operation. A number of them have crashed. This bomber is comparable to our giant B-52.

Note: Twining was born at Monroe, Wis.; enlisted in the Oregon National Guard at 19, graduated from West Point in 1918; and became a pilot in 1924. He was named Air Chief of Staff in June 1953, and reappointed in 1955.

Unexpected Hitch—A curious situation has developed on the promotion of movie star James Stewart to brigadier general in the Air Force Reserve.

Of all people, a woman is objecting to it.

She is Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), member of the potent Armed Services Committee.

tee, who has written a characteristically plain-talking letter to Defense Secretary Wilson about the matter.

Mrs. Smith has raised the question of whether Stewart and five other Reserve Airmen slated for stars have the experience and training warranting the promotions. Several weeks ago, the President elevated 11 Air Reserve officers: four of them brigadier to major general, and seven colonels to brigadier general. Stewart was fourth in this group.

Prompt confirmation of these appointments was deemed routine. Instead, they are stalled in the Armed Services Committee and are going to stay stalled until Mrs. Smith hears from Secretary Wilson.

Her colleagues decided to take no action until she gets a reply.

Note: William Lewis, administrative assistant to Senator Smith, is a colonel in the Air Force Reserve. It is vigorously denied there is any connection between that and her inquiries regarding the qualifications of Stewart and the other colonels to be brigadier generals.

New Job—General Twining's boss also may be promoted. Pentagon insiders credit Air Force Secretary Donald Quarles with excellent chances to succeed Defense Secretary Wilson when he quits later this year, most likely after Congress adjourns . . . Admiral Radford would like some other appointment after he steps out as chairman of the Joint Chiefs. His preference is for a diplomatic post, particularly in the Far East where he has had extensive service. One thing he doesn't want to do is to do nothing . . . The famed Third Army, commanded by Lieutenant General Thomas Hickey, is adding a new "first" to its numerous and far-flung activities. It's getting a new command—an Air Transportable Atomic Support Command, at Ft. Bragg, N. C. Patterned after a similar unit in Italy, the new outfit will be equipped with " Honest John " rockets and " Corporal " guided missiles . . . Security is as security does! The transcript of a Senate Armed Services Committee meeting records Air Secretary Charles as disclosing plans to buy upwards of 500 giant B-52 jet bombers. This heretofore classified information is in this record for all to read. But carefully deleted was a statement by Quarles regarding the monthly production of these strategic bombers. There is no explanation why this information was eliminated and the other not.

Tea Given For Teacher Recruitment

As part of their teacher recruitment project, Phi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, entertained high school girls of the county interested in making teaching their profession at the meeting held on Saturday afternoon.

Delta Kappa Gamma, an international honorary society for key women educators, has teacher recruitment as one of its specific aims. At the tea on Saturday, groups of students were present from Chestnut Hill, Waymart, the Delaware Valley Joint Junior-Senior High School and East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School.

Mrs. Wilbur Seese of the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College Faculty presented four college students: Miss Joylene Swartley, who discussed "What in the Profession Appeals to Me," Miss Ann Granahan, who spoke on "Children and How I Enjoy Working With Them," Miss Rose Mary Lobb, who told about "What I Have Learned in College," and Mrs. Mary Sterner, who spoke on "My Experiences and the Working Knowledge I Have Gained."

The students are currently training to be teachers and are now engaged in student training. They stressed in particular that they were learning to teach individuals not subjects. A question and answer period followed.

The Spring business meeting of Phi Chapter preceded the tea. Mrs. Lillian Wagner presided. Plans were made for the part the chapter will take in supporting a Korean Fellowship which will bring a woman teacher for a year's study in Pennsylvania. They accepted an invitation from the Alpha Alpha Chapter of Easton to meet with them for a luncheon at the Hotel Easton on May 11.

Mrs. Lillian Wagner and Miss H. Eloise Bryan presided at the tea table. The social committee included Miss Mary Hall, Miss Janet Bender and Miss Catherine Wolvert.

Just Between Us

I'm not so sure I could pass Dr. Shettel's test or not. "The real test of mental illness is not whether an individual has problems but whether he is able to cope adequately with the ones he has"—that's what the man said.

There are days when I cope, and other days when I "cope" is a mild word to describe my attempts to. Fortunately, we've got some real copesellers who not only cope magnificently with their own problems but with community problems as well.

The fact that Monroe County isn't in even worse shape as far as mental health goes is due to the concern of individuals. Mrs. Leister mentioned the Home for the Aging and the new Leisure Hour Club. She might also have mentioned the years of single-handed struggle to establish the Day Care Center, and the Monroe-Northampton Child Guidance Clinic.

All of which bears out Dr. Shettel's contention that mental health is a community problem.

How many of the services we take for granted today have been the outgrowth of just such an individual concern? So be not weary in well-doing. Maybe in coping with the problems of others you may find your own more manageable.

Maybe, I said. I doubt whether it would solve my basic problem which is needing a couple extra hours after the 24 usual ones. Or being a real schizoprenic so I could be two places at once.

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

"Boy do I feel old when I look at that picture?" Bud Altemus exclaimed as he dropped into a chair beside me in the advertising department the other afternoon.

I glanced at the framed picture on the wall, and noticed a group of men and women in the attire of 1875 gathered on the steps of a little frame building that was Wyckoff's at the start of its glorious career. "Why should YOU feel old?" I asked the head of our men's department.

"That woman is my grandmother," he said, pointing to a face half in shadows because of the bare awning frame hanging over the entrance. "Typical Pennsylvania Dutch she was... and always busy cleaning, scrubbing, cooking, and thinking everyone else should be the same way."

Bud leaned forward with his hand upon his knee, puffed at his cigarette, and warmed to his subject. "When I was just so high" (he measured a conservative distance from the floor) "I stopped at her house every morning to bring two scuttles of coal and a basket of wood from the cellar. Then she'd lift up that big, long skirt of hers, and fish her change purse from the pocket of her big undershirt, and give me a nickel for those big long licorice sticks and peanut butter drops we kids bought at the candy shop where our Sears farm store stands now. Boy, I thought I was rich then... and if my Great-Aunt was around she'd always slip me a quarter. Oh man alive, that was for real!"

Bud was always "Manuel" to his grandmother, having been named for Emmanuel, who was Grandma's husband and "Manny" to her. Bud remembers with a grin the peculiar brand names of milk, canned corn, and such that Grandma was always sending him, or Manny, for. "She was a thrifty one," he says with a chuckle, "and if she'd open a can and it didn't smell just right to her, back I'd have to go to demand 'fresh stock' or my money. I can still remember how scared I'd be... and scarlet to the roots of my hair."

For a while he reminisced... about the limestone his grandfather hauled from somewhere down the line for our Monroe County court house... and the stories he was told about happenings in those days before he "came to town." Bud, of course, is far too young to remember the opening of Wyckoff's... but he has seen, many times, the nightgown which was one of his grandmother's first purchases. Of white broadcloth, it was high at the neckline, ruffled at bodice, and long of sleeve—what's more, it's now a family heirloom, in the possession of his sister.

Styles have changed considerably in 82 years. Bud's grandmother would probably blush in consternation if she were to see the Baby Doll nightgowns of today... and so would her contemporaries, both male and female. But Bud and I were wondering if all these changes are for the better. Do the kids of today appreciate their allowances as much as he appreciated the nickels he earned each morning? Do they get as much pleasure out of nightly television as some of us got from the weekly movie at the old Stroud Theatre? Is a modern refrigerator half as much fun as grabbing bits of splintered ice from the old ice wagons on delivery days? It's more convenient for Mom, of course... but some mies I wonder if the price of progress hasn't been high. Maybe too high!

Local Needs Surveyed By Committee

Foster homes for the aged and senile is one of the new developments in the field of mental health. Dr. Raymond Shettel told members of the Stroudsburg Women's Club yesterday afternoon at their meeting at the Stroud Community House.

Dr. Shettel, assistant superintendent of the Allentown State Hospital, was speaking on "Progress and Development in Mental Health," and based much of his talk on the findings and recommendations of a survey committee now being presented at the Governor's Conference on Mental Health in Harrisburg.

Monroe County was one of the five counties surveyed by the local committee as to its needs and problems. In common with the whole state, one of those problems is the care of the aged, whose mental disturbance is linked with organic disturbances, and whose chances of rehabilitation are not good.

Make Room For Hope Yet one third of all admissions to state hospitals are patients 65 or over, Dr. Shettel pointed out. Much of the overcrowding could be avoided, if foster home care, similar to that provided for children, could be used. In the Philadelphia area, such a plan is being used successfully, he said, with financial remuneration and psychiatric supervision in suitable homes.

Homes for the aged, rather than general hospital or psychiatric hospital care, would also relieve the over-crowding, he said, leaving beds for the younger patients with better chance of rehabilitation.

Primarily, of course, he said, the problem was the prevention of diseases of senility through community efforts.

Montroe Needs Clinic In Monroe County, together with Pike and Carbon, the committee found an urgent need for a mental health clinic: extension for both adults and children, he reported. If the community could provide the physical facilities for such a clinic, the state could help out in finances for the staff.

The second recommendation dealt with the establishment of residential treatment centers for emotionally disturbed children. Because of its cost, such a center would have to serve a comparatively large area, he said.

The expansion of services of the local health and welfare agencies was the third recommendation under which foster home care, and preventive measures could be made available.

A diagnostic center for in-patient and out-patients where individual studies could be made and proper placement advised; more adequate service for the mentally retarded on the local level, including tests to establish whether the child was really mentally retarded or merely seemed so; and the establishment of psychiatric units in general hospitals were other recommendations of the committee, he reported.

Need Community Interest

In speaking specifically of the changes in the Allentown State Hospital, Dr. Shettel emphasized the growing cooperation between the hospital and the community. The hospital is tapping many of the educational and other resources of the community, and in return community interest is supplying trained volunteers.

These together with the increase in social workers and psychiatric work, are primarily responsible for the increase in discharges.

Developments in the field of surgery and new drugs have also helped, he said, but cautioned that, contrary to the hopes raised by popular articles, neither was a cure-all, and had to be adapted to the individual cases.

Mental health was both an individual and a community problem, he said. Even those with no personal interest are tapped for taxes. Prevention of mental disease through the schools, through ministerial counseling and through an informed public were major hopes he held out. "The real test of mental illness," he said, "is not that the individual is without problems but that he is able to cope adequately with the ones he has. That ability can be taught, can be learned, and can be bettered by practice."

Miss Flory Outstanding Teacher, 1957

"Miss Ruth Flory loves all children, regardless of ability, background or environment," read the letter from one of the parents who nominated her as Monroe County's outstanding teacher for 1957. Other letters of nomination also stressed this quality of love between pupil and teacher.

Miss Flory was chosen to receive the Stroudsburg Women's Club first award for an outstanding teacher by a panel of judges representing all sections of the county, from a list of many nominees. The award, a silver platter inscribed "To Miss Ruth Flory, Outstanding Teacher Award, Stroudsburg Women's Club, 1957," was presented yesterday afternoon at the Woman's Club meeting by Mrs. Claude Leister, president.

Mrs. Leister paid tribute not only to her teaching through 42 years in the East Stroudsburg Schools, and read excerpts from the letters nominating her, but also to her help to her fellow teachers, her church service as teacher, and elder in the East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church.

Miss Flory, who holds an A.B. degree and a Masters from Teachers College, Columbia University, is a teacher in the East Stroudsburg Joint Area Junior High School. Theodore Miller, principal, was also present to witness the honor.

In making the award, Mrs. Leister pointed out that it was established in the hopes of encouraging young people to choose teaching as a career, and to recognize the contribution of good teachers throughout the country.

Miss Flory in her acceptance of the award emphasized the same point. "I could not accept this award on my own behalf," she said, "but on behalf of the principal, Theodore Miller, my colleagues in the East Stroudsburg Junior High School; and on behalf of all teachers I accept the award, with gratitude to the spirit of the women who made it possible."

"No teacher can be successful without the cooperation of the community," she said and praised the support of the Woman's Club in encouraging teaching as a profession.

Mrs. Van D. Yetter, chairman of the educational committee, was in charge of the project. The judges who made the final choice included: Mrs. Raymond Price, Barrett, chairman; Dr. Francis McGarry, ESSTC; Rev. Norman Savage, East Stroudsburg; Miss Lulu Harvey, Soroptimists and BPCW; Mrs. David Kohn, Mount Poccano; Joseph Kushner, Stroudsburg; and James Gould, West End.

Spare Time, Honor System Among Area Teen-Age Problems

What Young People Think

Teen-Agers Are Great Newspaper, Book Readers, But Forget Bible

By Eugene Gilbert
President of the Gilbert
Youth Research Co.

DO TEEN-AGERS forget their reading habits, the minute they step out of a classroom?

The answer is no. A nationwide survey of young people reveals that 78 per cent read books not connected with school work, 76 per cent regularly read a daily newspaper and 72 per cent read magazines each week.

Forty-seven per cent say they read more than 10 outside books each year.

The survey turned up one disappointing fact — that only 46 per cent of the teen-agers read the Bible. And of these, only 20 per cent read it regularly while 80 per cent read it seldom or almost never.

"Why should I bother to waste my time reading the Bible?" asked a young man. "I'll have centuries and centuries of eternity to study it. Man, I've got plenty to do now."

But a 16-year-old girl said: "It's thrilling to learn about our earliest history. The Bible can tell us a lot about how people dressed and lived and thought as far back as anyone can go."

Sixty-seven per cent of the Bible readers said the book is not hard to read.

"I can get through it all right," said a 13-year-old Minnesota girl. And a 14-year-old boy said: "I always figured that reading the Bible was for squares. But it's good stuff. Sometimes you find a chapter that just hits the spot."

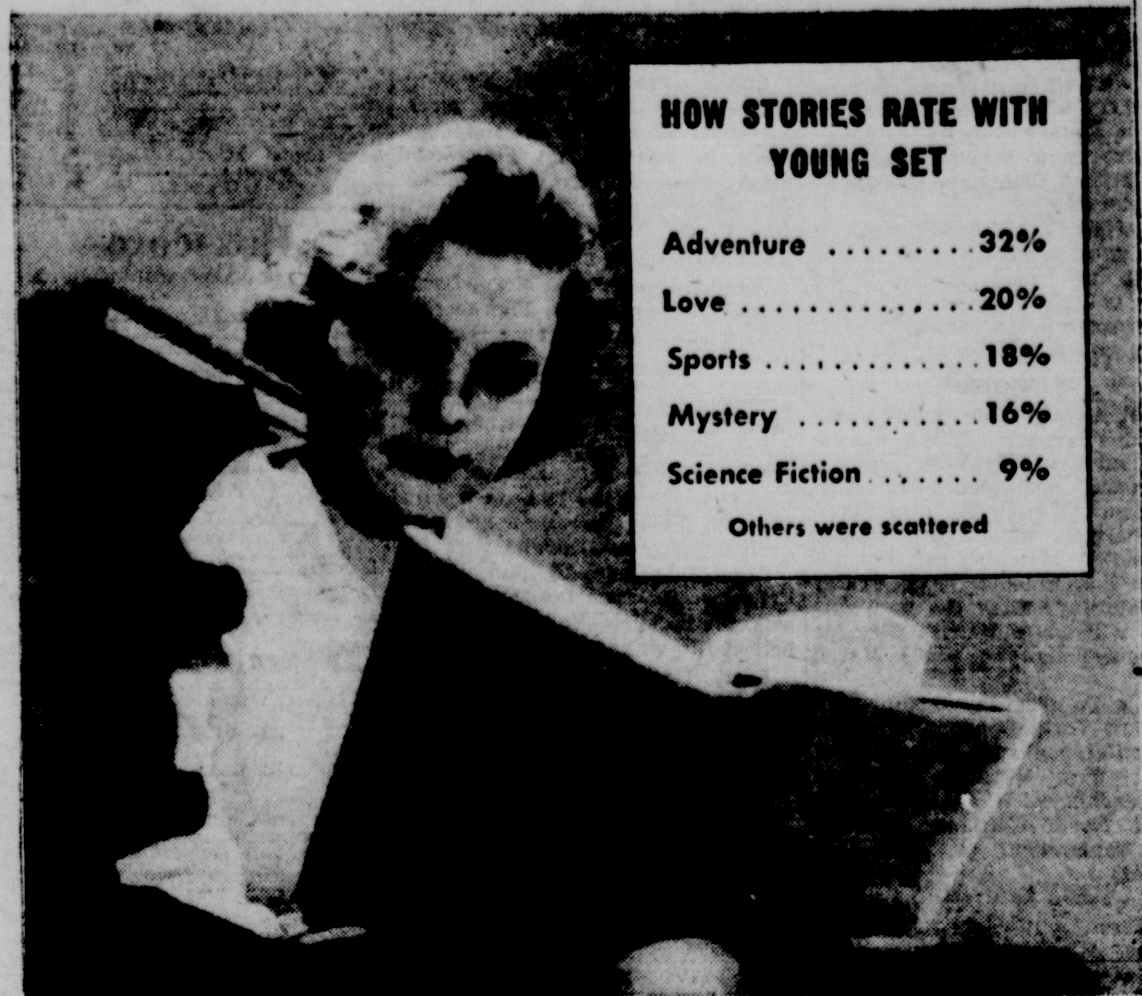

Movies Influence Reading

The movies apparently influence what books young people read, because many they listed as "their favorite recent book" have been made into motion pictures in the last two years.

But the winner, while in the category of a great movie, certainly isn't a recent one. And the most notable thing is how many weighty books and films are listed among the favorites.

"Gone With The Wind" barely edged "War and Peace" as the most popular book. Others in the "top ten" were "Margorie Morningstar," "East of Eden," "Jane Eyre," "The Man in The Grey Flannel Suit," "Moby Dick," "Crime and Punishment," "Not As A Stranger" and "Magnificent Obsession."

"I've gone through 'Gone With The Wind' four times during the past four years," a 17-year-old girl said. "What a romance!"

The teen-agers liked adventure stories best, with 32 per cent giving this category a huge first place margin. Next came love stories, 20 per cent; sports stories, 18; mysteries, 16, and science fiction, 9. The remaining 5 per cent liked other categories or a combination of the above.

A typical comment of those who don't read books was this from a Newark, N. J., boy: "Who has time for long books? I stick to short stories when I have time for extra reading. A book takes a month to finish — a short story goes in an hour."

Short Stories Best

In reply, a girl who is a constant reader said: "Short stories are the tightest form of fiction—naturally, because they are short. But nothing compares to the fun and satisfaction to be gained from reading a novel and sort of getting to know the characters."

The young people also showed they are interested in what is going on in the world by listing front page news as that which they like most to read in newspapers.

A New York boy, one of the 36 per cent who listed front page news as his choice, said: "I like to keep up to date on happenings in the world. You'd be surprised at the interest teen-agers are taking in the news these days. What is going on now may determine if we have to fight a war when we finish high school."

The boys and girls named comics and cartoons second to front page news, with 28 per cent of the vote, followed by sports news, 17 per cent, society news, eight per cent, and movie, radio, television and news columns, six per cent.

Pius High Pupils Differ In Relaxation

Pius X High School

By Phyllis A. Comunale

QUESTION: What do you do in your spare time?

Nickie Caserio, Freshman — In my spare time I tinker around my workshop in the basement. Right now my project is a 110-AC generator for our Cadillac, and I am experimenting with electric arc welding.

Mae Marie Falcone, Freshman — In my spare time I like to cuddle in a cozy nook with a tall glass of milk and some cookies, and read one of my favorite Nancy Drew, Mystery Books.

Dave Trigiani, Senior — Whenever I have a few minutes to spare, you'll find me no other place but in the parlor listening to my favorite Hi-Fi records.

Marie Elaine DePaulo, Sophomore — Any time I manage to find some spare time, I busy myself with puzzles, especially great big ones.

Janet Schiavone, Senior — Since fashion designing seems to be my bright future, every spare minute I have is devoted to drawing, especially beautiful clothes. I just love to do it, too.

Tommy Faltich, Senior — Whenever I have spare time, you can look for me on my uncle's farm helping with some of the chores, or tinkering around with my old tin Lizzy.

Tommy Tepoli, Freshman — I very seldom have any spare time with my studies and all, but whenever a free moment arises I just make a bee-line for the kitchen — and "food."

Spare Time Tough Item To Find

QUESTION: What do you do in your spare time?

Nancy Heller, Senior — To me spare time is when you are not occupied with school, school activities or dating. Evaluating spare time in this manner, actually means time in which you have nothing to do.

In my spare time I can think of nothing more relaxing than sitting and reading a good short story or novel. Since I live in the country, I like being outdoors as much as possible, perhaps taking a walk. In the summer swimming constitutes most of my spare time. Of course, on those blue, rainy days what can be a better pastime than sleeping? Spare time is something everyone wishes he had more of.

Sara McGrath, Senior — What spare time?

Eddie Hermanns, Sophomore — In what spare time I have left over from school and homework, I spend mostly with the sport of that season. I also spend much time at the YMCA.

Building At Coatesville

MANY OF the patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital at Coatesville will soon be transferred to the hospital at Murfreesboro, Tenn.

In announcing this yesterday, Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.) said the transfers will be of a temporary nature and will be only for the duration of the modernization program that is taking place at the Coatesville VA Hospital.

Walter's statement was addressed to families of patients living in the 15th Congressional District. "They should feel no alarm over the transfer of their veteran relatives," the congressman said, "as upon their return to Coatesville, the facilities of the hospital will be 100 percent improved over the existing facilities."

Key Stocks Show Decline On Market

NEW YORK, March 11 (AP) — The stock market dragged its feet today in another dawdling decline similar to Friday's.

Key stocks were down from fractions to a point or so at the close, moderating some early losses of about 2 points.

Volume of 1,650,000 shares was scant improvement over Friday's 1,630,000 which was the lightest volume since last Nov. 12 when Veterans Day was observed.

A few high spots illuminated the drab performance. One was a rise of more than a point at one phase by American Motors which made a rare trip to the top of the most active list.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 80 cents to $172.50 with the industrials down $1.10, the rails down 90 cents and the utilities down 30 cents.

Of 1,100 issues traded, declines outnumbered advances by 567 to 307. There were 17 new 1956-57 lows and 8 new highs.

American Motors, closing with a net gain of 1/4 at 7, topped the list with 73,900 shares. Boeing was second, up 1/4 at 47 1/2 on 25,300 shares. Third was Bethlehem Steel off 1/4 at 42 1/2 on 18,500 shares.

Next came General Motors, unchanged at 39 1/2 and Merritt-Chapman & Scott, unchanged at 21. American Telephone dropped 1/4 as directors made known their opposition to a 4-for-3 stock split proposed by shareholders.

Lower included Youngstown 1, Gulf Oil 1 1/2, U. S. Steel 1/4, Standard Oil (New Jersey) 1/4, Alcoa 1, su Pont 1/4 and Good ear 1.

The American Stock Exchange was generally lower. Corporate and U. S. government bonds improved.

Miss Blatt Praises Leader

DOILESTOWN, 1 March 11 (AP) — Pennsylvania's secretary of internal affairs says the administration of Gov. Leader, if compared with that of any Republican governor of the state "will look a hundred times better by comparison."

Miss Genevieve Blatt said also last night at a Bucks County Democratic rally she was sure "the rank and file . . . are behind the efforts of the leader administration to improve their state government."

Record

Miss Blatt, listing a "record of achievement" by the Democratic administration, also took time to defend it on two subjects which are currently a center of controversy.

Concerning Republican claims that the administration was hiring too many consultants at too high prices, she said: "I felt very, very much gratified that those public spirited people had their names in any way reflected upon."

Bangor Discusses Honor System

Bangor Area Joint High School
By Lois Reimer

QUESTION: Do you think the honor system could be effective at Bangor High?

Annabel Policelli — Yes. There is a need for a sense of responsibility in high school students and the honor system would help to provide this sense of responsibility and integrity in Bangor High School students. It would also help students to bridge the gap between high school and college or work where they are expected to act like children, when students are treated like children, they tend to act like children. Constantly reminded of things they must not or must do they rebel. For instance, a class taught by a substitute teacher was noisy and ill-behaved, but the same students in a class immediately following had no teacher, and behaved well and studied industriously.

The effectiveness of such an honor system I might add is partly the result of the up-bringing of students, by the parents with integrity and honesty.

Many facilities needed for an honor system are lacking at Bangor High School. I sincerely hope that when a new high school is built provisions will be made for an honor system, for the betterment of its students and, consequently, the community.

Patricia Hoenshelt — The honor system is very practical and aids in the development of a person's character. In many colleges, this system has been useful. Some high schools also use this method to combat cheating. However, this system can only work well if the students are willing to cooperate. In Bangor High School the same is true and for this reason, I feel that the honor system would not work well. Many of our students are in school only because they aren't old enough to quit or their parents won't allow them to go to work. These students do not care how they get their work done and they cheat openly. These people would obviously hinder the effectiveness of the honor system. Unless the students were divided into two groups — the ones who wish to further their education and the ones who wish to loaf — could such a system be effective.

Nancy Chamberlain — I definitely think the honor system could be effective in Bangor High School. It would give all the students a feeling of confidence to know that the teachers were trusting them to that great a degree. Everyone has a certain amount of honesty in them. When you are actually being tested on your honesty, I am sure the majority of the students would rather flunk the tests than actually cheat.

Student (name withheld) — Do you, students, think you could help to make an honor system effective? Well, maybe you will say "yes," but perhaps you are one of those students who talks in study halls, neglecting studies. An honor system is wonderful if there is cooperation; it is a great responsibility for everyone to control himself and his fellow students. This isn't observed by me alone, but by schools leaders and club leaders as well. I'm not degrading our student body, because there are many schools with worse discipline than ours. Those of you going to college after high school will find you will be faced with the honor system, and you will be expected to take on this responsibility.

Student (name withheld) — Yes. Anyone who would answer "no" to this question would probably state this for the reason "the students aren't responsible or trustworthy enough." My reply to this would be, "That's exactly why we need an honor system." In the near future, when these students get out on their own, they're going to have to learn to be responsible and trustworthy, or they will be a menace to our community and our nation. I believe the honor system would work at Bangor High. I know it did on one occasion when our class was left without a teacher. At least during 95 percent of that entire period there was absolute silence in that room. Everybody was working and that included students classified by most teachers as the noisy type. We were on our own responsibility and we naturally respected it more than if it were someone else's.

Good Story Triumphs

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 11 (AP) — Edwards Limbert was acquitted of careless driving when he told a court here his car was working too well. He said a garage had just adjusted the car's sluggish acceleration and he found it more than he could handle when he turned a corner. That he said, was why he hit two other cars. The garage repairman backed him up.

WHILE IT HAS NOT been officially confirmed it is almost certain that Buck Rader, of Jim Thorpe, John Eiler, ESSTC coach, and Graden Praetorius of Saylorburg, will be the commissioner staff in the Pocono Mountain Baseball League this summer.

Clinton Getz of Lake Harmony, newly elected president, is expected to make the official announcement sometime this week.

Rader, a well-known sports personality in Carbon County for years, will be chairman of the three-man governing group.

Both Eiler and Praetorius records in sports speak for themselves. John, in his first year, led ESSTC's bowlers to national recognition, and Graden has been a staunch backer of Saylorburg athletics for many a moon.

Incidentally Eiler, who left Monday to take part in a GI soccer clinic in Europe, was on the receiving end of two bon voyage shindigs last week.

Last Friday the soccer proteges threw a party, while a couple days before his close friends expressed their fellowship at an event in the Lehigh Valley Club, Allentown.

Dick Merring, one of the greatest halfbacks to ever don a Warrior grid suit, is all but delivered to Uncle Sam's Army.

Dick passed his physical the other day and now is awaiting the call that usually beckons all young men.

Merring, who was the school's only player to get Little All-America football mention, hopes to continue his football career while wearing the colors of the United States.

Don Herman, former East Stroudsburg High star under Jack Kist, is at work in spring drills with Muhlenberg College's varsity football team.

Herman, a regular Mule end until injuries sidelined the ex-Cavalier last year, is again a top candidate for a flank post.

Don Hayes, who used to lug the leather for John Whitehead at Stroudsburg High, is being counted on to make the grid varsity at Bucknell this season. Hayes, one of the real standouts of the Baby Bisons as a yearling, is one of 22 backfield prospects seeking first-string berths at the Lewisburg, Pa., institution.

Professional basketball is paying off in Easton. Not much but enough to keep the backers' heads above water.

Some say if the Phillipsburg-Easton Madisons of Chick Craig had a better record, the coffers would be enriched that much more.

Others, however, counter with, "if the Madisons didn't have Hal (King) Lear the treasury wouldn't be on the black side of the ledger."

No matter how you look at it, Lear who is just three points shy of 1,000 for the season in the eastern pro loop, is the drawing card, whether it be Easton, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Williamsport or Sunbury.

Apparently it doesn't matter if Easton is floundering in the cellar as long as Lear is feeding the fans his now 50 or better points per game performance. He's money in the bank. It's only a shame the Madisons had to play home in smallish Easton High gymnasium.

Undefeated North Carolina Top Final AP Court Poll

By BEN OLAN
The Associated Press

THE North Carolina Tar Heels, unbeaten in 27 games, today broke the two-year hold of the San Francisco Dons by finishing in first place in the final Associated Press college basketball poll of the 1956-1957 campaign.

The Tar Heels, winners of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament last week, were given the No. 1 distinction by 55 of the 76 sports writers and broadcasters who participated in the final vote.

North Carolina was in 13th place in the final balloting last season. This year, the Tar Heels were sixth in the first poll on Dec. 10, moved up to third the following week and remained in the runner-up spot behind Kansas from Dec. 25 to Jan. 21. When the Jayhawks lost their first game to Iowa State, North Carolina moved into the No. 1 position and held it for the last eight weeks.

Gain Top Ten

In the final voting, West Virginia and St. Louis moved into the top ten replacing Michigan State and UCLA.

West Virginia, which nailed down an NCAA berth by winning the Southern Conference tournament, jumped into seventh place from 11th a week ago. St. Louis, the Missouri Valley champion, climbed to 10th. The Billikens were 12th last week.

San Francisco, which had an 18-7 record, did not receive a single vote in this year's final poll.

Harvard Ends Coach Search, Names Gettysburg's Yovicsin

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 11.—Harvard University ended a nationwide quest for a football coach today by naming John M. Yovicsin of Gettysburg College to direct its gridiron destinies.

The 38-year-old former star athlete at Gettysburg had a 32-1 record for the past five years as head football coach at his alma mater.

He succeeds Lloyd P. Jordan who was ousted earlier this year after the Crimson had a disappointing season of 2 victories in 8 games.

Jordan, who came to Harvard from Amherst College, had a 24-31-3 record in his seven years here.

Yovicsin (pronounced Ya-vicsin) did a turn of professional football with the Philadelphia Eagles and is expected to ditch the single and double wing attack long in use at Harvard and install a straight T-formation offense coupled with a rugged defense.

Yovicsin bears the stamp of approval of Dick Harlow, former Harvard coach, and was quickly approved this morning at a brief meeting of the Harvard Board of Overseers.

Following Harvard policy the length of his contract was not disclosed, nor was his salary—believed to be in the vicinity of $10,000.

"Thrilled"

Yovicsin said at Gettysburg he was "thrilled and very happy" for the chance to coach the Crimson.

Frankly saying an Ivy League coaching job had always been his ambition, Yovicsin said, "I am glad it is to be at Harvard."

"I am looking forward to my new assignment, and am anxious to get started," he said.

Yovicsin was graduated from Gettysburg in 1940 and received his master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

A native of Steelton, Pa., Yovicsin is married and the father of four children, three sons and a daughter.

Eagles Launch Campaign To Prevent Age Discrimination

FRATERNAL ORDER OF EAGLES has launched a campaign for "Jobs after 40" and to prevent discrimination because of age by employers. Every Aerie in the United States has been urged to take up the crusade in their local communities.

The campaign was endorsed by two Eagle regional conferences, the Midwest parley at Chicago, and the Eastern meeting at Washington, D. C. Stroudsburg Aerie was represented at the Washington conference. The first step in the campaign, will be an appeal to President Eisenhower to include provisions in a federal job directive to employers with government contracts, so that there will be no discrimination because of age.

Aeries are being provided with printed material by the Grand Aerie's Program and Activities Department, which outlines the jobs after 40 problem, and urges Aeries to petition their congressmen and state legislators to act to prevent discrimination. One of the points stressed is that it is economically to the advantage of employers to use the experience and skill of trained men still in good physical condition.

Support
Powerful support for the Eagle campaign has already come from prominent figures in the United States senate. Senator Richard Neuberger, of Oregon, who addressed the Washington conference, backed the drive unreservedly.

Judge Robert W. Hansen, director of the Grand Aerie's Program and Activities Department, and Past Worthy President, who is sponsoring the program, pointed out that "Jobs after 40 are becoming a social-economic tragedy for many American families."

Grand Worthy Lawrence Leaby, in backing the campaign, said that the Eagles can make it as noteworthy as that which launched the drive for state old-age pensions and the national social security act.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

FOR TUESDAY, MARCH 12, 1957
March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Emphasize your astute judgment, sense of balance and accuracy now. Day requires intelligent management, and good luck, too. Preserve, be cautious but not overcautious. You can gain.
April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Stress sensible caution in all hazardous activities, and moderation in pleasures, etc. This should be a favorable period for study, research, analyzing, preparing for work to be done later.
May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Restrain yourself in many ways. In mental work, or if trying to solve difficult problems, do not tax yourself to the point of fatigue, and avoid anxiety. One can often attain more on uncertain days if he remains calm, reasonable.
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Familiar matters, work for which you are trained and have talent should run smoothly, perhaps profitably if you have faith and don't give up. Do what you must thoroughly, patiently.
July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Good vibrations linger from yesterday's fine Sun aspect, but other planets are not auspicious now, so be wisely careful, know where you're going, and what to expect. Work for good results.
August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—There may be a tendency to rush, do things without calculation and proper thought, perhaps undertake more than you could handle well now. Be on guard.
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Be systematic, be accurate and don't heed advice indiscriminately. You have good judgment and intuition; don't hamstring either through asty action or carelessly following wrong directives.

Brodheads Suggested As Water Supply

Based on the use of Brodheads Creek, Estrada estimated it would necessitate a 56 percent increase in rates if all of the recommended improvements were made. This would mean an average rental of $36.50, and $19.50 per hydrant.

Estrada read a letter from R. F. Goodhue, superintendent of the Municipal Inspection Department of the Middle Department Association of Fire Underwriters, which supported the recommendations made by the engineers.

"For a number of years," Goodhue wrote, "we have been exercised by the inadequate source of supply, limited high level storage, and lack of arterial main support, particularly in (Stroudsburg's) mercantile and manufacturing districts."

Relief
"Your ultimate plan provides for the relief of all these factors and provides a basis for substantial growth in population and area. While varying from our previous recommendations, your plan of improvements accomplishes the same objectives, and is considerably more comprehensive, especially as regards to future."

"If we have any criticism," Goodhue continued, "it lies in the priority sequence. The possibility of conflagration in Stroudsburg is most emphasized in the Main St. area between Fifth and Tenth Sts., where the fire flow available is 68 percent deficient. The existing 10 inch line in Lindbergh Ave. from the reservoir to Phillips St. was part of a plan to relieve the situation."

"It is our sincere hope that Stroudsburg's decision to go ahead will include an early date for these items," he added.

The authority engaged the consultants in September, 1956 to determine ways to provide an additional source of supply which, when added to present sources, will provide sufficient capacity of potable safe water to meet present and future water demands under drought conditions.

It further sought to determine necessary improvements to the distribution system in order to provide an adequate supply at a reasonable pressure for the future water consumption demands and for fire fighting demands.

The consultants concluded that it is necessary to develop an additional source of supply which, when added to the present supply capacity of a million and a quarter gallons daily, will increase the total capacity to twice that amount.

The most economical way to provide this capacity, the consultants said, would be to provide a filter plant at Stokes Mill Spring at Brodheads Creek.

In order to provide for the ultimate capacity of 2,500,000 gallons per day from the present and proposed source of water supply, the report stated, "it will be necessary to provide a transmission main supplemental to the existing 10 inch main from Stokes Mill Spring to the existing reservoir."

Deficiencies
"In order to correct deficiencies of fire flow, as well as pressure in the distribution system, it will be necessary to construct arterial mains and a standpipe for additional water storage," it continued.

Based upon its findings, the engineering firm made these recommendations:
1.—That the authority adopt the plan whereby the additional source of supply would be provided from Brodheads Creek, together with construction of a necessary filter plant.
2.—That the authority adopt the plan to ultimately develop the transmission and arterial main system as outlined.
3.—That the authority proceed immediately with construction of at least those items having top priority. It also recommended that "serious consideration" be given to carrying out construction of a 12 inch main in Main St. from Tenth St. to Dreher Ave. at the same time.
4.—That in establishing increased rates to provide for the financing of the construction program that the authority negotiate with the borough for an increase in hydrant rental to at least $50 and preferably to $100 each inasmuch as a major portion of the construction can be directly charged to the necessity for adequate fire protection facilities.

Pen Argyl To Have Dial Phone System
PEN ARGYL — The first telephone exchange in the Slate Belt area to be converted to the dial system will be the one serving Pen Argyl and Wind Gap.
Pennsylvania Community Telephone Co. announced yesterday that conversion of the Pen Argyl exchange is scheduled for April 29 at 8:01 a. m.
The exchange will operate under the "University" with the letters "UN" to be dialed, followed by five digits.
Other exchanges in the Slate Belt area to be converted to dial later, The Portland and Saylorsburg exchanges were converted in August and November, 1955. Both are also owned by Pennsylvania Community.

Dr. Rushmore Not To Seek Second Term

DR. CHARLES H. Rushmore announced last night he would not seek re-election as Monroe County coroner.

Dr. Rushmore, who was the successful Republican nominee in 1953, cited the pressure of his medical practice as the reason he would not seek re-election.

During his term of office, Dr. Rushmore was faced with the tremendous task of identification of flood victims.

He reported that he handled 68 cases during 1956.

Stroudsburg Councilman Daniel G. Warner, a funeral director by profession, has already announced his intentions of seeking the Democratic nomination for coroner.

Parents Meet To Plan Schedules

STROUD Union High School held a meeting of eighth grade students and their parents in the school library last night.

The meeting was called in an effort to assist pupils entering high school next year to choose their proper courses and to plan their high school career.

A large crowd of students and parents were on hand last night and eight teachers were kept busy until after 9 p. m. in answering questions and assisting with problems.

Similar Gathering
Alfred W. Munson, high school principal, announced that due to conflicting schedules a similar gathering will be held at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Tomorrow's meeting was made necessary because of conflicting dates which kept many parents away from last night's meeting.

SCOUT FAMILY—When the Paul Flory family of 516 Queen St., Stroudsburg, get together they naturally talk of scouting. They are one of only a few families in the region who are 100 percent enrolled in scouting, either as members of Boy or Girl Scout troops or as leaders. This all-scout family consists of (left to right) Mr. Flory, Nancy Jo, 14, Bruce, 12, Mrs. Flory, and Patsy, eight. Today is the 45th anniversary of Girl Scouting in the U. S.
